Kelloug, of Logisiana, Talks -- He Ratties

Away, and States Facts. When the Southern Pacific railroad question was considered, a few days ago, the carpet-bag Senator Kellogg emptied his portmanteau of ideas thus loosely in the Senate Chamber: The Little Rock and Memphis railroad is a five-feet gange railroad, and it connects at Memphis with railroads from that point east; it is nearly completed to Lattle Rock. I think, perhaps, there are twelve or fifteen miles yet uncompleted of something over one hundred and twenty miles of road in all, which will then make a continuous line of railroad, except over the Mississippi river at Mem-phis, from a point on the Atlantic at Charleston or Norfolk, as the case may be, intersecting or connecting with a ramification and network of railways from the Atlantic to the Pacific-every rod of which, with scarce an exception, is a five feet gauge. Thus there is a connection from Norfolk on any point south of Norfolk on the Atlantic across the country, south of the southern line of Tensee, through the cotton belt, through the Gulf States, to the Gulf of Mexico, intersected north and south as well as east and west, by a five feet gauge railroad. All the railroads south of the Ohio, with one or two exceptions (and those are five feet six inches or five feet nine inches gauge), are five feet gauge.

The whole system of our railroads South is settled upon this gauge. The great base of the Northern system o railroads finds its center just south of the lakes and its apex between Sioux City and Omaha, thence westward, as contemplated by bills passed or com-panies organized or reads completed. Then the other base finding its center at Pittsburg, and west and south to the mouth of the Ohio river, forming a focus at St. Louis and south, converging thence westward, and still other finding its base from the Ohio to the Guif and its focus or spex pointing to the thirty-fifth or below that, to the thirty-second parallel, and forming from Marshall the eastern terminus or initial point of this road, the longest and straightest air-line in the world, to Charleston and Savannah or Brunswick, Ga., the latter point containing the best harbor on coast, nor for that matter on the Pa-It is only twenty-three hundred and fifty miles from that point has not. This is a distance no further in point of statute miles, mile by mile, than it is from Chicago to San Francisco by way of Omaha, or from Superior City by the way of the North Pacific to Puget Sound. The whole system of railroads south of the Ohio river really bears down to the thirtysecond parallel. It is hundreds of miles nearer. It is three hundred and seventy-five miles neater from Norfolk to San Dieg) by the thirty-second parallel than by the other route. It four hundred miles nearer from Philadelphia, nay more than that, Now, this is the mischief, I beg to observe to my friend from North Carolina. It is to cut off that communiention through the cotton belt of the South. It is to cut off that longest straight as a bird can fly stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific over vast plains, a road of less grade everywhere, built at less expense, going through a country that in an agricultural and mineral point of view is unsurpassed in this mighty continent of ours, and better than all never to be obstructed by climate, by snows, by obstruction peculiar to the wintry clime of the North, far below the snowy belt, with only one single chain of mountains opening at El Paso, the Cordifferis, and not the Sierra Nevada or Rocky mountains, with their altitude of eight thousand feet above the level of the sea to This road has none of these obstacles to overcome; no impediment throughout the year. It is a route as percunial as the flow of the Gulf tream. It is such a road, with all its ramifications and network of five-feet gauge, that the South ask at the hands And the question simply is, when they ask for bread, will you give them a stone? Or will you permit the Central Branco of the Kansas Pacific, from Ellsworth going across the Indian country, to tap It Why, sir, they will be here in a few ninutes asking that they be put on, as a sort of tail to our kite. They will ask us to pledge the faith of this nation to extinguish the Indian title for the benefit of that road, so that they can go down with their four feet eight and a half inch gauge, tap us at El Paso, and bear all our travel and commerce to the North, far west of Memphis. Here is the mischief that my friend from North Carolina (Mr. Ab-The connection from Memphis to it unfortunately happens that the gauge of California roads is four feet ight and a balf luches, like the Union Pacific, and thus the Southern Pacific leaves one or the other system at its the possibility of making connections. However, it is enough for us to know that the bill will almost certainly pass as Kellogg wishes it.
